SECTION A: MODULE 1

Answer ONE question only from this section.

1. The extracts below relate to the Spanish conquest in Mexico up to 1550. Study them, then answer questions (a) to (d) that follow.

Document 1

...we went to look at the dead lying on the plain and there were more than eight hundred of them, the greater number killed by thrusts, the others by the cannon, muskets and crossbows, and many were stretched on the ground half dead. Where the horsemen had passed, numbers of them lay dead or groaning from their wounds. The battle lasted over an hour, and the Indians fought all the time like brave warriors, until the horsemen came up.

Bernal Diaz Del Castillo. "The True History of the Conquest of Mexico" in Lewis Hanke and Jane M. Rausch, eds. People and Issues in Latin American History. The Colonial Experience, 2nd ed. Princeton: Markus Wiener Publishers, 2000. p. 107

Then the Spaniards fired one of their cannon and caused great confusion in the city. The people scattered in every direction; they fled without rhyme or reason; they ran as if they were being pursued... They were all overcome by terror, as if their hearts had fainted.

Miguel Leon Portilla. "The Grief of the Conquered: Broken Spears Lie in the Roads" in Lewis Hanke and Jane M. Rausch, eds. People and Issues in Latin American History. The Colonial Experience, 2nd ed. Princeton: Markus Wiener Publishers, 2000. p.115

The fighting at Xoloco and Huitzillan lasted for two days. While the battle was under way, the warriors from Tenochtitlan began to mutiny. They said: "Where are our chiefs?" They have fired scarcely a single arrow! Do they think they have fought like men?" Then they seized four of their own leaders and put them to death.

SECTION B: MODULE 2

Answer ONE question only from this section.

4. The extracts below relate to the Haitian Revolution and the factors contributing to its success. Study them, then answer questions (a) to (d) that follow.

There is a motor that powers them and that keeps powering them and that we cannot come to know. All experienced colons know that this class of men has neither the energy nor the combination of ideas necessary for the execution of this project... all have observed an obstinate silence when questioned about who armed them and incited this odious trance...

Pierre Mossut to Marquis de Gallifet, September 19, 1791 in AN, 107, AP, 127, dossier 3 in Laurent Dubois.

Document 2

...in his vest pocket was a large packet of tinder and phosphate and lime. On his chest he had a little sack full of hair, herbs, and bits of bone, which they call a fetish... It was, no doubt, because of this amulet that our man had the intrepidity which the philosophers call Stoicism.

Laurent Dubois. A Colony of Citizens: Revolution & Slave Emancipation in the French Caribbean, 1787–1804. Kingston, Jamaica: Ian Randle Publishers, 2004. p. 110

[Their chief had] shown some intelligence in the distribution and choice of the posts they are occupying... on lower hills and on slopes of high mountains to be well situated for their incursions unto plains... [They had] established a system of communication between camps so that whenever one has been attacked others have come to their aid, and that they have hidden surveillance and meeting points.

Letter from November 1791 and October 1792 in “Memoires de M. Ricard, maréchal de camp in CAOM, C7A, 45, 119–147 in Laurent Dubois.

SECTION C: MODULE 3

Answer ONE question from this section.

7. The extracts below relate to the integration movement in the English-speaking Caribbean. Study them, then answer questions (a) to (d) that follow.

Document 1

This Conference, recognising the desirability of a political federation of the British Caribbean territories, accepts the principles of a federation in which each constituent unit retains complete control over all matters except those specifically assigned to the federal government.

Sources of West Indian History,
London: Longmans, Green and Co. Ltd. 1967. p. 292*

Document 2

We are determined to work towards... a single market and economy for the Caribbean Community... We shall ensure that... the three Common Market Instruments required by the Treaty of Chaguaramas [will be] effective by January 1991.

*Grand Anse Declaration issued at the 10th Meeting of the Conference of Heads of Governments of the Caribbean Community, July 1989 in Time for Action – Report of the West Indian Commission.
Kingston, Jamaica: The University of the West Indies Press, 1992. p 525*

Document 3

The history of West Indian efforts at unity in the administrative and economic spheres does not inspire hope, much less confidence. We believe, however, that the burden of failed effort rests not so much on West Indian people as on West Indian decision makers over centuries of such efforts.... The West Indian people have not waited on Governments, they have integrated.
